

AJP International Seminar
The Internationalization of Higher Education

English As A World Language:

Some Perspectives on Teaching and Learning in A Globalized Age

John O'Regan (Institute of Education, University of London)

Mike Winter (Institute of Education, University of London)

Since the end of the Second World War the English language has developed into a global language of communication. In this talk Dr. John O'Regan of the Institute of Education, University of London, examines the development of English as an international language in an age of globalization. He considers some of the debates around the global dominance of English and how this affects perceptions of teaching and learning in the classroom.

Date: 18th October 2012
Time: 10:30 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.
Place: Tohoku University Graduate School of Education 11F Hall
Fee: Free
Language: English

Dr. O'Regan

Information <http://www.sed.tohoku.ac.jp/~ajp/event/20121018/>

Contact

Graduate School of Education
Faculty of Education, Tohoku University
ASIA JOINT- DEGREE PROJECT office
〒980-8576
27-1 Kawauchi Aoba Sendai, Miyagi, JAPAN
Tel: + 81-22-795-3756